This week we've discovered how to set the "destination" option to start a video from a folder. But it's not enough just to open the video from there, we also need to pause it before playing. Yes, there is an option to set this directly in the Player, but what if you want to do it programmatically? Such as having a button press trigger it or have the video pause from another app? Here is the solution we found, and it's quite simple! You can also resize the window, reposition the controls, set the controls' icon, and hide the controls (without having to root the device). You can even remove the controls altogether. Need help? Please contact us. We're always available at support@bombitsoftware.com or follow us on social media. Thanks! Featured Post Masterclass! Avant Browser's only goal is to deliver the best performance. It's not meant to be beautiful or easy to use. It's just a browser. Its main feature is the way it loads web pages, the data is loaded in memory, and not from the hard drive (RAM). This means that the website it is visiting is displayed faster because it doesn't need to load the entire web page into the hard drive. A: I tried installing Chrome (32-bit) and then switched it to FireFox (32-bit), and then back to Chrome, and my problem was gone. I then installed Firefox (64-bit) to see if it would work, but it didn't help at all, so I'm thinking that I have some dodgy registry setup or something. I assume it's the same for
