you're a space elf. The protagonist of the Hiveswap Friendsim is... you know, you. The Hiveswap Friendsim is a quick, loosely-canonical visual novel adventure following the efforts of the unnamed protagonist (that's you!) to survive and maybe even thrive on the harsh surface of ALTERNIA. Set in the time of Hiveswap: Act 1, this episodic visual novel's opening volume, written by Homestuck creator Andrew Hussie, is sure to satisfy Homestuck and Hiveswap fans who are eager for a darker stroll across the Alternian landscape. Future episodes will arrive regularly as DLC. "We're in the boring bullshit of today's life, look we're just here waiting for the end. The end is up ahead. And we will all cross paths." ~ A Child in the Wastelands Okay, so maybe the phantoms in this book aren't enemies. They might not even be aliens either. Maybe they just, uh, sorta forget to hang around once they get to where they're going. So. What about you? What's it like having this entire fantasy world drop down out of the blue and chase you down through other worlds and planets? What's it like being the chosen one of the Alignment? Think about it. Are you afraid? Do you think you know the things that are waiting for you? That darkness spreading across the face of the earth? Remember this: you are something else. Summary A child in the wastelands A man among trolls A time traveler among aliens The chosen one of the Alignment Who is the chosen one? A vision of the possibilities Let's play! This is definitely a game that hits a lot of the buttons we're used to from text adventures. There are, for example, vague references to the "Puppet King," which tends to turn us guys into full-on conspiracy theory nuts. If he's not talking about a puppet and performing puppet shows, then he's talking about some sort of alien dictator who controls the puppet... which means he's talking about puppets being used as some sort of super-mecha. These sorts of things have actually happened. You don't have to be a c9d1549cdd

What's new in Trapped In The Forest:

Chapter 44: Whispering the Winds Thirty days after the first red snowfall, the three Wayfarers left the ancients' village, which they once had called a residence. They weren't returning, that was clear. There was nothing more they could tell the village's villagers about having traveled the Solar Expanse and coming to discover the truth about the ancient beings called the Ancients. Stories of these strange creatures with large heads and bodies were never heard of in the village. They never told villagers how they had said their last farewell to their god, and it remained unknown whether this god was a deity or an early ancestor of mankind. The tribes had made their way back home at the beginning of spring, back to their village - and now a great barren desert began to take over land and life. And it was as if, at the same time, the wind was whispering to them to seek out the expanse again. It would lead them to the great hall, where a clear message came through to them. The roof of the temple was closing up; in its passage it slipped through the white walls. It was a gentle breeze; the wind was whispering. To discover secrets. Seek beyond the temple and beyond the village. To the expanse and the mountains in the distance, where the wind would carry them. But the village's words were the last they would hear for a long time. The boy, who was yet a little girl, was sitting next to the old man. The figure of the old man was sitting straight in his chair, with a silver whistle in his right hand. Nama the fox and Chukchi the crow were flown away from the boy and the old man. There was a ship leaving the shore and now they were transported to another shore. The boy had seen it happen in the Old God's dream. The old man slowly blew the whistle, and now the ship was slowly floating away. The boy was happy for a moment. She looked at him and said, "Well, that's nice. I'm going to sleep now." The old man nodded to her, and the two of them went into the cabin. Sawyer was left alone in the world. His journey, how it had all started - he thought back to this moment in time and the path before him. He had

A new world. The universe of Ever Dark. A realm comprised of countless stories and legends. A realm that has seen all. In the heart of this realm lie the Orbs and the Gates. Belonging to no one, no thing, and no time. The Orbs have one purpose. They help create. This project is the result of countless months of hard work. Working with close to 3 different teams to develop this game and its many systems. It's been a lot of hard work to get to this point and we appreciate all the wonderful feedback and support of our players, whether it be on facebook, discord, or at a convention in the USA or Europe. New: An English translation 2 new levels A new map editor New lighting features New Team Auto Pick New story. An announcement of our previous ammount of funding. Enhanced visuals Basic movement New tutorial and UI Some bugfixes And a few smaller improvements Been playing the game ourselves, it's fantastic and we hope you all will enjoy it as much as we have. Rewards: Participants in the Patreon will be able to download the mod before the general release for a short amount of time. We are still working on a new Patreon campaign and will hopefully announce it soon. For those who have expressed interest in supporting us financially, thank you. Your support is much appreciated! The Inception of Ever Dark is available on platforms Windows, Mac, and Linux and on PlayStation 4. We have also released a demo on PC where players can try out the game before committing to buy it. We are currently working on a Windows and Linux release of the demo. If you want to stay up-to-date with our progress please visit our website, either on our blog or on our twitter.
